Since six months Alicja and her family live in the city. She has no friends and is a total loser in school. When she meets Milena, Kaja and Julia everything changes. The popular girls have modern cell phones and fancy clothes. Each afternoon they go to a shopping mall to find new 'sponsors' – old men who pay for cosmetics and clothes in return for sexual favors.

With a stable family background and her shy admirer Mihal Alicija seems to be immune to this lifestyle. But never underestimate the effects of peer pressure and emotional neglect ...

PODZIELONA KLASA is the new work by versatile documentary filmmaker Andrzej Klamt.

In 2008 the director went to his hometown in Upper Silesia twice. Searching for his old classmates from school Nr. 5 he discovers that approximately the half left Poland a while ago - most of them emigrated to the Ruhr area.

The film is a rare attempt to keep track of the integration of the so called ethnic German immigrants. In interviews selected ethnic German immigrants tell their personal stories - about their childhood in former communist Poland and their departure to the "Golden West". The classmates in Poland were asked what they think about their former fellow students leaving the community. Are there bad feelings or rather best wishes for the smart decision and a better life? Due to shared memories a special bond between the participants evolved. As a result the documentary shows very personal interviews and deep insights in the individuals' minds.
